With twenty-five years of experience in the nursing arena, Tabatha Bowers, NP, BScN, MN, embraced her current role with The Scarborough Hospital in Toronto, ON, Canada, in 2000, and works at the GAIN/Geriatric Assessment and Intervention Network Clinic. GAIN is an inter-professional team of healthcare professionals that works with patients and families and their primary care providers to strengthen supports and capacity for older adults whose health concerns threaten their ability to live independently at home, including retirement residences.

Tabatha's career in nursing commenced in 1992 when she graduated from Durham College of Applied Arts and Technology. She pursued and acquired her Bachelor of Science Degree in Nursing in 1999 at Ryerson University Daphne Cockwell School of Nursing, followed by her Master Degree in Nursing in 2004 from Lawrence M. Bloomberg Faculty of Nursing at the University of Toronto. An advocate for continuing education, she completed her Post-Masters Diploma as a Nurse Practitioner in 2010 from Lawrence M. Bloomberg Faculty of Nursing at the University of Toronto. Furthermore, Tabatha received certification in medical-surgical nursing and gerontological nursing from the Canadian Nurses Association.
